STEPS

Being Taken to Secure Another Railroad for Barbourville.

Enthusiastic Meeting of Citizens in Conference With Delegation from Jellico, Tennessee, and Beattyville.

Last Thursday evening the first steps were taken tending to lead to the establishment of a new railroad along the route proposed some months ago by the Advocate between Jellico, Tenn., and Beattyville, Ky.

At the last meeting of the City Council a committee composed of Judge S. B. Dishman, J. M. Tinsley and D. W. Clark was appointed to confer with a like committee from Beattyville, Manchester and Jellico, Tenn., and arranged for a public meeting, whereupon the committee at once entered into a correspondence with the leading citizens of the respective towns and arrangements were made for the meeting here on the date of August 20.

Dr. Newman, Mayor of Jellico, Tenn., accompanied by R. M. Baird and Mr. Moore were here to represent their city, and Judge Gorley was here to represent his town of Beattyville, while Manchester had no representative present.

The meeting was called to order at 7:30 o'clock in the hall over the first National Bank by Judge S. B. Dishman, and Dr. Newman, of Jellico, was elected chairman, and W. M. Dishman, secretary. Upon taking the chair Dr. Newman made a splendid talk, setting forth the needs of the railroad and the vast territory it would open up should the road be built. He was followed by Judge Gorley, the representative from Beattyville, who spoke earnestly and enthusiastically in favor of the erection of the road, and his remarks showed how the road would open up an avenue to the north by commencing with the L. and E., the L. and A. and the Kentucky river slack water navigation and thought the prospects flattering to secure the road. He was followed by Mr. Baird, who gave an interesting talk and urged that a committee be appointed to formulate plans, draft articles of incorporation, etc., and report at a meeting to be fixed for a later date by the members present. Judge S. B. Dishman followed next in a strong speech favoring the building of the road and agreed with Mr. Baird in his suggestions. The next speaker was Judge Flem D. Sampson, who spoke earnestly for the establishment of the railroad and showed how it would be maintained. The next speaker was Judge H. C. Faulkner, who gave a very interesting talk, going over the entire line, starting at Jellico, Tenn., and tracing the route through to Beattyville, a distance of about one hundred miles, and describing in detail the mineral and timber resources all along the line, showing by actual knowledge of the territory that there is no richer field in the State, and perhaps none in the Union, that possesses richer resources than this territory through which this proposed railroad would traverse.

The committee was then appointed composed of one representative from each of the three towns represented to draft articles of incorporation and whatever matters they deemed necessary and report at the next meeting which will be held in this city on Tuesday evening, August 8. Judge S. B. Dishman, of Barbourville; Judge Gorley and Mr. R. M. Baird, of Jellico, constituted the committee.

The meeting was a very enthusiastic one and largely attended, there being about fifty of the best citizens of our town present, and it seemed to be the consensus of opinion that the road will be built at an early date.

CIRCUIT COURT.

The July term of the Knox Circuit Court convened last Monday morning with Judge H. C. Faulkner on the bench and Commonwealth's Attorney William Lewis present.

After empanelling the juries the court gave a very forceful instruction to the grand jury. He said in part:

"We have a rapidly growing county notwithstanding the adverse reports, and the time is rapidly drawing near when Knox county will no longer be a pauper county."

"There are some things in which we are sadly behind, one is the deplorable condition of our county roads. They are so bad that it is pitiable to speak of, and if the grand jury should indict every overseer that has been in office since the 1st of January they would make no mistake. If the jury does its duty there will be no escape. No county ever lost money, no matter how extravagantly it was used when spent in improving the public roads."

"I want again to call attention to the condition of our Court-house. With a county containing three and one quarter millions of property, and a county levy from seventeen thousand to twenty thousand dollars, to be content to put up with such a building as this is out of the question. There is not a room or vault about the entire building where our title deeds could be protected from fire, and if it should come the litigation that would follow would cost many times more than the new Court-house."

There was a county in Kentucky had a Court-house burned twenty years ago and the litigation has not as yet been settled.

This is the worst Court-house in Kentucky to-day. There is not a Court-room in Kentucky to-day so dangerous to health as this one. This Court will be the end of some good citizen. Some one will die from this work; there has not been a term of Court here in a long time but what some life has been sacrificed by it, and yet the people seem not to be aroused. While the small back counties have comfortable rooms for the convenience of court we have nothing of the kind; yet you say we can't afford it; the jurors are forced to stand up in this small crowded room, yet a majority are against a new Court-house."

We have never been able to keep this room comfortable, no proper ventilation, and after seventy years one of the leading counties in the State has fallen behind her sister counties.

"The Fiscal Court has acted properly in submitting the vote to the people, but I wish to state now that it is the purpose of this Court to have a new Court-house or have the old one remodeled from cellar to garret. The Fiscal Court will be ordered to rebuild and must rebuild large enough for all purposes, rooms for each of the county officers. It can be done with surplus from two years' taxes."

"If the Court-house is kept on this square hauling will have to be stopped over the square, and this would prove a hardship to the business men. Now it is left to the people to say whether they will build or whether they will not, but I will say to you WE WILL BUILD IN THE NEXT TWO YEARS WHETHER THE BONDS CARRY OR NOT."

"With more improvements coming, such as new railroads, coal and mineral developments, etc., by properly distributing the bonds it can be arranged to make it easy. The next ten years will more than double the value of the taxes."

By issuing the bonds it will cause those who come into our county in later years to help pay for the improvements they would enjoy, instead of having to pay for it all ourselves at present."

He then touched heavily upon the liquor question and urged upon all the Magistrates, and County and Police Judges to do their duty in stamping out this evil and urged the grand jury to indict any of them if it could be found they were guilty of wilful neglect of his duty. He scored the practice of "divides" or "divies." He complimented our school and colleges and said they should be protected from the cause of liquor. He then took up the subject of bribery in elections and handled it without gloves, and urged the grand jury to investigate the matter and sift it to the bottom, and said he was going to make it possible for the poor as well as the rich to be elected to office, provided they were worthy and competent.

He said in part: "If there is a man on this grand jury who has bought votes in an election in this county with money or other valuables let him stand aside. I don't want such a man on the jury."

"It has reached the point where, when a man announces for a county office or for Congress in this district the first question asked is how much money has he to spend? This must be done away with in the mountains. A poor boy ought to have a chance at public office as well as the rich. As long as I am your Circuit Judge I intend to enforce this law. You know your duty, will you do it? Will you?"

He next touched upon the question of school selling, and asked the jury to investigate all these matters thoroughly.

In conclusion he added that if the people did not want this kind of instructions given to the juries they must put some other judge on the bench."

The instructions were considered the strongest ever delivered from this bench, and scores of the audience came forward after court adjourned and congratulated the judge upon the stand he had taken."

The juries are made up as follows:

GRAND JURY.

STRAIN IS TOO SEVERE.

Caleb Powers Forced to Name Hours When Visitors May See Him.

Newport, Ky., July 24.—So severe is the strain on Caleb Powers because of the pressure of visitors that on Monday he was compelled to call Jailer Ben Ploger, of Newport, to limit callers to certain hours. The number anxious to see the prisoner is daily increasing and he has requested the publication of the following:

To My Friends: However much I regret it, in justice to myself and my affairs it will be impossible for me to see any callers except between the hours of 2 p. m. and 7 p. m. Sundays excepted. Respectfully, REVIVE THE COMMERCIAL CLUB.

Now that the prospects are beginning to brighten it would be well to revive our Commercial Club again. There has been no meeting of this body for some time and it seems that interest has been lagging, while it is conceded by every one that a wide awake Commercial Club would wield a wonderful influence toward securing needed factories and other improvements for our town.

Let's have a meeting at an early date and take up the questions most interesting to our people and adopt plans to put them into execution.

We should have a membership of one hundred or more in our town, and then with what assistance it could give the movement now under way, we feel perfectly assured that the proposed railway would become a certainty.

Call a meeting, Mr. President, and let's see if we cannot succeed in interesting our citizens in the movement.

We need a soliciting committee to secure new members, and we should have a public meeting at which public interests could be discussed in their various forms. Why not have a meeting at once? Let's not be laggard in this matter. Now is our opportunity; come, let's get together.

A BEAUTIFUL TRIBUTE.

In the course of his remarks last Thursday evening at our railroad meeting Dr. Newman, of Jellico, Tennessee, said: "I have always looked upon Barbourville as the GEM OF THE MOUNTAINS OF SOUTHEASTERN KENTUCKY." She is beautifully located and laid out in a broad, fertile valley, and already contains many magnificent residences, and if she can secure another railroad to open up the resources of this country it would be only a short time until her population would reach 5,000.

This compliment, coming as it did, from the Mayor of an adjoining town, should be considered quite a compliment, yet we know it is true and the doctor only reiterated the statements we have made over and over in these columns.

Now let every citizen of Barbourville unite in an effort to secure this proposed railroad, and let every citizen of the county join in with us in this effort because Barbourville will not alone be benefited, for what benefits the town will in a measure benefit the county as well, and in this particular instance the county will come in for a large share of the benefits.

A COLLEGE PAPER.

Prof. G. H. Reibold, Dean of Union College, is preparing to begin the publication of a college paper for Union College, to be known as "The Collegial Journal."

This is another forward step for Union College which will help to put her in the forefront of the best colleges in the State.

United States Supreme Court, will be held at Catlettsburg, Ky., next December. In no other way can this be figured out by the Government officials in Kentucky. The schedule for holding the sessions of the United States Courts in Kentucky during the coming fall is as follows: Frankfort in September. Covington in October. Richmond and London in November.

Catlettsburg in December.

The present status of the Powers case must remain unchanged until the United States Supreme Court meets to sustain or overrule the stand taken by Judge Cochran in assuming jurisdiction in the case. The Supreme Court does not convene at Washington until October, which fact eliminates Frankfort and Covington from the probable place of trial should the Supreme Court sustain Judge Cochran. Richmond, London and Catlettsburg are left. The case is now docketed at London, which is in the vicinity of Powers' home, and where all his mountain friends live, and it has been hoped by Powers' friends that the case would be tried at London. But, as a matter of expediency or on any other pre ground Judge Cochran may transfer the case to any other place where he holds court.

Even if the Supreme Court sustains Judge Cochran and the case is advanced and tried with as little delay as possible, none of the Government officials connected with it can see how the preparations for trying the case can be completed in time for the session of the court at London in November. Besides all this the Washington authorities limit the time to two weeks for holding the sessions of the court in Covington, Frankfort, Richmond and London, and no one can figure how the business that has already accumulated in all of these districts can be disposed of and the Powers case also tried in two weeks, it being certain that the Powers case alone will consume at least that much time.

The only thing left for Judge Cochran to do will be to transfer the case from the docket at London to the docket at Catlettsburg. The court at Catlettsburg is the last to be held of the fall term in the Eastern Kentucky district, and there is no limit on the time to be consumed there. That court can consume all of the month of December and go over into January if necessary. It is therefore almost safe to say that if Powers is tried in the United States Court it will be at Catlettsburg, and that the case will be called in December.

In this event it is also regarded as certain that Powers will be out on bail before that time. Judge Cochran refused to admit him to bail at Maysville last Friday, announcing that he would take no action in the matter until the United States Supreme Court had passed on the question of his jurisdiction in the case. Should the Supreme Court sustain Judge Cochran and decide that he has the jurisdiction it is regarded as certain that Judge Cochran will admit Powers to bail, in which event it will be furnished, no matter what the amount.
